Themes, Ideas + Issues in Of Mice and Men by John Steinbeck

Ranch Life
- Hierarchy: all men know their place.
  - Boss
  - Curley
  - Slim
  - Whit, Carlson, George
  - Candy, Crooks, Lennie
- Whole farm - a machine for work. It is functional, simple with no luxuries.
- Men are not machines - they have strengths and weaknesses. Ranch life is unhealthy and destroys men’s dreams.
- Bill Tenner moved on - he serves as a reminder that it is possible.

Names
- Lots of the names describe their characters.
- Some are ironic: Lennie SMALL; Candy.
- Curley’s wife has no name: she wants recognition, her own identity, to be more than somebody’s wife. Steinbeck emphasises how she has none of these by not naming her.
- Soledad is the local town. It means ‘loneliness’.
- A weed is a plant you don’t want. Weed is where G and L come from.
- The novel’s title comes from a poem. It tells us not to expect anyone to be happy, and that plans always fail - no matter how well they are thought out. The title is a constant reminder that failure is inevitable.

Shooting Candy’s Dog
- Carlson does the deed for selfish reasons. He convinces Candy it is the right thing to do.
- Slim has the power to save the dog but he chooses not to. This is cruel, but also practical.
- Candy is useless - like the dog.
- There is no mercy on the ranch for animals or humans. This is one of the main messages in the book. It shows the cruelty of life here - not because of the dog but because no-one cares about Candy’s feelings.
Themes, Ideas + Issues in Of Mice and Men by John Steinbeck.

HANDS
- Curley is described as 'handy' and gets his hand crushed by Lennie.
- Candy lost a hand.
- Lennie – famous heavy 'pendula' hands, used for petting and they don't know their own strength.
- George has small, strong hands.
- Slim – hands are large and lean.
- Curley's wife – hands are part of her sexiness. She has polished nails, puts her hands on her hips, uses them for acting.

LONELINESS
- Everyone on the ranch is lonely: they are single men with apparently no family.
- George plays solitaire – a game for one.
- Curley is lonely even though he’s married. The only time we see him with his wife is when she’s dead.
- Curley’s wife is lonely – she tries for companionship by flirting with the men.
- Crooks lives in a barn on his own because he is black.
- There doesn’t seem to be a solution to cure the loneliness: That's why they rely on the dream.
- Lennie has pets: but then he kills them.
- Candy has his dog. But then Carlson shoots it.
- When anyone tries to grab hold of someone, it seems to end in disaster.

DREAMS
- The novel is about the American Dream – promising equality for all.
- Everyone in the novel has a dream.
- People on the ranch are going nowhere.
- Dreams, unfortunately are not real.
- George’s dream dies with Lennie.

WHY GEORGE KILLS LENNIE
- George only has 3 options: Lennie goes to prison; Lennie gets lynched; find a cave to put Lennie in.
- All options are bad.
- Lennie’s death is inevitable.
- George simply has to kill Lennie to avoid all the other things happening.
- Death is Lennie’s new dream. He had to die with dignity.

WOMEN
- Curley's wife: only weapon is her sexuality.
- Aunt Clara: Authority figure for Lennie.
- Susy: runs a brothel.
- Men and women don’t understand one another. Lennie has problems with women.
